General Rules

- Open to college students with valid IDs. Teams must consist of exactly three debaters. Registration is free.
- Teams must report 15 minutes before their round. Arrivals exceeding 10 minutes may result in a walkover.
- Harassment, plagiarism, unparliamentary conduct, or unauthorized assistance may result in disqualification.

Format & Structure

- The competition follows the Asian Parliamentary (3v3) format, with three preliminary rounds on Day 1 and semifinals and grand finals on Day 2.
- Preliminary rounds use a power-pairing system based on team performance and speaker scores. Sides are allocated by the tab system; elimination-round sides are determined by coin toss or seeding privileges.
- Motions are announced 30 minutes before each round. Only printed notes are permitted during preparation; electronic devices, AI, and external coaching are prohibited.
- Each team must provide an accredited adjudicator as per the N=N requirement.

Speaking Rules

- Substantive speeches are 7 minutes, with a grace period up to 7:30. Reply speeches are 4 minutes and allow no POIs.
- POIs of up to 15 seconds are permitted between minutes 1 and 6. Each debater must accept at least one and may accept up to two.
- Preliminary rounds may feature single chairs or panels; elimination rounds use three-judge panels. Oral feedback is provided after preliminary debates.

Evaluation

- Content & Analysis: 40 marks
- Rebuttal & Engagement: 30 marks
- Delivery & Style: 20 marks
- Strategy & Time Management: 10 marks

All adjudication decisions are final and binding.

General Rules

- Open to college students with valid IDs. Registration is mandatory.
- Report 15 minutes early; arrivals over 10 minutes late may result in a walkover.
- Misconduct, plagiarism, or unauthorized assistance may result in disqualification.

Competition Format

- Single-elimination knockout. The preliminary motion is released three days in advance; subsequent motions are announced 30 minutes before each round.
- A coin toss determines sides. The winner chooses Proposition or Opposition; the loser speaks first.
- Each debater delivers one six-minute speech. Proposition speaks first.
- Time signals are given at one minute remaining and at six minutes. Overtime incurs a one-mark penalty per 15 seconds, up to 30 seconds.
- POIs (maximum 15 seconds) are allowed between minutes 1–5. Each debater must accept at least one and may accept two. The final minute is protected.
- Cue cards (maximum 10, half-A5 size) are allowed. Impromptu preparation permits only organizer-provided paper and printed dictionaries; electronic devices, AI, and external assistance are prohibited.

Evaluation

Each speaker is scored out of 100 by three judges.

- Content & Analysis: 40
- Rebuttal & Engagement: 30
- Delivery & Style: 20
- Strategy & Time Management: 10

The higher aggregate score wins. Ties are decided by the judge-in-chief. The Adjudication Panel's decision is final and binding.
